PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Annual report 1899

To the regents of the University of the State of New York

I have the honor to report on the public libraries division of the home education department for the year ending Sep. 30, 1899, as follows:

STAFF

There have been no changes in the division staff. The work connected with inspection, reports and state grants has all been done by Mr W. R. Eastman with his two assistants, Mr W. Burt Cook jr and Miss Nellie S. Mesick; while that of examining lists of books to be bought with state grants and of selecting, cataloguing and annotating lists needed to respond promptly to the many requests for information and advice has been largely done by Miss Martha T. Wheeler, with Miss Jennie D. Fellows, Miss Elizabeth Gilbert and Miss Elizabeth B. Wolston.

Besides the work done by the persons formally charged to the public libraries division, an immense and closely allied work is done for the benefit of free libraries and their allied interests by the traveling libraries and pictures, study clubs, and extension teaching divisions and by the state library. From the nature of the duties, economy and efficiency both demand that not only the divisions of the home education department, but those of the state library as well must constantly interchange work. Under definite vote of the regents it has been our policy to have each piece of work done where it could be done cheapest and best, with the result that a person whose salary is charged to one division often works for three or four, but as all are paid from a single appropriation and all are working for home education, there is no ground for criticism.

Inspection. The great need of a subinspector is felt more and more each year, as we have over 1000 libraries under inspection. Mr Eastman's admirable work merits the recognition of the assistance necessary to make it physically possible to see each library at least once in two years, while now it will be four or five years. Experience has proved conclusively that no work done by the state yields so large returns for the investment as satisfactory inspection, and nothing is so much appreciated by librarians and trustees earnestly trying to accomplish the maximum good for their community with resources at their disposal. We ought to have the service of a thoroughly competent subinspector at the earliest possible day.

Advice to libraries. Besides inspection and reports under Mr Eastman and selection and annotation under Miss Wheeler, both of which involve a large correspondence, there is a steadily growing work of the utmost importance in providing printed and manuscript aids to libraries feeling the need of a source of trustworthy information or advice. When the library system of the state was reorganized the attention of the legislature was called to this need and it was fully recognized in §48 of the University law which reads:

§ 48 Advice and instruction from state library officers. The trustees or librarian or any citizen interested in any public library in this state shall be entitled to ask from the officers of the state library any needed advice or instruction as to a library building, furniture and equipment, government and service, rules for readers, selecting, buying, cataloguing, shelving, lending books, or any other matter pertaining to the establishment, reorganization or administration of a public library. The regents may provide for giving such advice and instruction either personally or through printed matter and correspondence, either by the state library staff or by a library commission of competent experts appointed by the regents to serve without salary. The regents may, on request, select or buy books, or furnish instead of money apportioned, or may make exchanges or loans through the duplicate department of the state library. Such assistance shall be free to residents of this state as far as practicable, but the regents may, in their discretion, charge a proper fee to non-residents or for assistance of a personal nature or for other reason not properly an expense to the state, but which may be authorized for the accommodation of users of the library.

§ 49 Use of fees and fines. The regents may use receipts from fees, fines, gifts from private sources, or sale of regents bulletins and similar printed matter, for buying books or for any other proper expenses of carrying on their work.

From the first this aid has been one of the most important and most practical duties. The suggestion that some of this service could be rendered by an unsalaried library commission has resulted as all experience indicated it would. Librarians are notably full of the missionary spirit and no professional workers are more ready to give their services where needed. The ablest librarians of the state have without exception accepted their appointments as members of our library council and never complain when their advice is asked on any definite questions. But it has of course been found entirely impracticable for these unsalaried overworked experts, burdened with the cares of their local libraries, to attend to daily correspondence or to answer personally the endless questions arising among those interested in our more than 1000 libraries. As a matter of economy we are constantly putting in type answers to inquiries likely to be repeated, so that we may save correspondence. Much that might be done in this direction has been postponed for lack of time and ought to engage our early attention because it will add so greatly to the service we can render to the libraries of the state without increasing expense; for by using a carefully prepared system of printed answers the same staff can do more than double work.

As the law provides, this assistance has been made free to residents of New York. The discretion given to charge a fee to nonresidents has been sparingly used for the numerous cases in which but trifling labor is involved. To refuse to tell any librarian what we found to be the most economical or efficient method of doing any piece of library work would be to depart from the uniform practice of American libraries. It has always been a matter of pride for a library to receive the compliment of having its advice and experience asked by distant libraries. The fact that our library is a recognized leader results in our receiving an unusually large number of such inquiries and we have gladly answered them by printed material or letters to all. To guard against possible criticism however we have used the discretion allowed and charged actual cost of time required for preparing lists, making extracts or doing work that went beyond the limit of a courteous reply to a reasonable question and came fairly within the field of personal assistance.

EXPENDITURES

The home education department began the year with no balance and carries none forward, as the money that could advantageously be used in the interests of libraries and good reading for our great population far exceeds any amount likely to be put at our disposal. Use of the $50,000 appropriated for 1899 is shown in the table below. Besides this, $7494.49 from the academic fund was expended through this department for books, pictures, lanterns and slides for schools. As a sharp separation of material bought for libraries or clubs and for schools would involve expensive duplication, the whole stock is treated as a unit and loans are made to either class of borrowers from what was perhaps originally bought for the other.

The table of expenditures summarizes our financial operations for five years Unfortunately less money is available for buying books because of the steadily increasing number of libraries claiming state grants, which this year are $29,292.32 against $12,317.22 four years ago. "Books," as is usual, covers binding and serials. We buy practically no serials in this department and our repairs and binding are done by the state library bindery, so that, except $188 charged in 1895, nothing is included for serials or binding in the book expenditures. This year, fittings, supplies and freight, which includes all transportation charges on our traveling libraries, have been charged to the general account, thus releasing more money for direct money grants to libraries. The number of persons required to do this rapidly growing work in all the divisions of home education has steadily increased from 11 in 1895 to 22 in 1899, and must still farther increase if we spend the money in a way that experience proves will accomplish most good for the libraries and people of the state.

PUBLICATIONS

Best books of 1898. In January 1899 a list of 500 leading books of 1898 was printed and sent to 1000 librarians of New York and other states to obtain opinions as to the best 50 books of that year for a village library. The books were arranged in class order with author, title, publisher and price. From the lists returned a summary was printed containing in order of rank the 52 which received the highest vote.

A careful selection was then made by the state library book board and a bulletin (Bibliography 18) was published in June 1899, containing 205 best books of 1898, with brief descriptive notes. This final list was made to indicate by special marks the first 20 books recommended for a very small library; also the best 50 and the best 100 for libraries prepared to buy more books.

At several meetings of library associations the "best books of the year" were the subject of animated and instructive discussion. Valuable papers dealing with this matter were contributed and subsequently published in the Library journal and other places.

LIBRARIES CHARTERED, REGISTERED AND TRANSFERRED

Chartered and admitted

During the year 3 absolute and 8 provisional library charters were granted by the regents involving the transfer of one district library. 10 were established in places where there were no previously existing libraries open to the public. One library was admitted with existing charter and 10 provisional charters issued in 1893, '94 and '95 were made absolute.

Founding and control. The following tables show by what action chartered University libraries have been established and by whom trustees are elected. Of 131 boards of library control, 35 are appointed by local boards of education, 23 by school districts and 3 by school officers, showing that nearly half are still closely related to the school system. An increasing proportion of libraries is in charge of library associations.

Support. Of 155 libraries in the University 118 have received grants of money from the state during the year, while 81, including both public and association libraries, have been aided by local taxation. Those helped by taxation have for the most part availed themselves also of state aid. Only 23 University libraries have received anything from invested funds, and the majority still depend largely on private gifts obtained by considerable personal effort by trustees.

In communities where public libraries are now sustained by private effort a little earnest work will arouse new interest which would secure by popular vote the aid of taxation. A small amount of money thus used for the common good brings large returns. Till this is done no free library without large endowment can be considered permanent.

Summaries. The following table includes all libraries and institutes that have come into the University under the University law of 1892.

The state library and the libraries of 648 teaching institutions are not included, nor those merely registered as maintaining a proper standard. The list contains those only that have a distinct corporate existence and are in the University by charter or admission. Many details are given that could not readily be obtained for other libraries. Except the Grosvenor library and the library of the Society of natural sciences in Buffalo, and the Quogue library, all are free for lending.

The number of library and institute corporations in the University is 155. Three of these were originally chartered by special acts of legislature, 24 were incorporated under general laws and 132 now hold standard or provisional University charters, four having been reincorporated. 59 charters are provisional for five years from date of grant, indicating that property, including books, is not yet valued at $1000.

The libraries in the University, located in 51 different counties, contain 534,149 volumes, or 58,740 more than in 1898. Their circulation this year reached 2,072,689 volumes, or 377,057 more than in 1898.

GRANTS

Oct. 1, 1898, there were on file five approved applications for public library money amounting to $834 unpaid in the preceding year for lack of funds. These were paid and other grants were made in December 1898 amounting to $7253.89. After the supply bill appropriation of $25.000 became available, other grants were made in May, July, August and September 1899. During the year $29,292.32 was paid to 169 libraries, including branches, an average of $173 to each. There are now 235 libraries that have received state aid.

INSPECTION

Libraries visited. During the year Inspector William R. Eastman visited 140 libraries in 47 counties; of these libraries 56 had not been previously reached and 18 are not connected with the University. Of these libraries 11 received University charters this year, 15 others were registered as maintaining a proper standard, and 81 received grants of public library money.

Growth of free lending libraries under state inspection. The independently organized libraries and institutes under University inspection and their relations to the University are as follows:

Standard and provisional charters granted by the University	132
Limited charter granted by the University	1
Admitted to University with existing charters	23
Registered	79
Total	235

The 155 libraries received into the University under the law of 1892 now contain 534,149 volumes, an increase of 55,740 or nearly 12% over last year. Their free circulation has reached 2,072,689 volumes, an increase of 377,057 or 22%. The average circulation for each 100 volumes has steadily advanced from 276 in 1893 to 388 in 1899, showing that after six years an equal number of books reach 40% more readers under improved conditions and that there is no falling off from the constant rate of growth apparent from the first.

No one of the 11 new libraries of the year has much property. The largest amount reported is $3414, while eight have less than $1000 each and one has but $150. However, 10 other libraries which began on like conditions and worked for five years under provisional charters have now obtained full incorporation with property ranging in value from $1055 to $1746. This steady advance under difficult conditions in small communities gives the best promise of permanent success.

Besides the libraries holding University charters there are 79 others, including branches, registered as maintaining a proper standard. Such registry is not only a basis for state aid but is also required by law of libraries not owned by the public as a condition of local subsidies.

Most of the larger circulating libraries have sought the advantage of state registry. The recent remarkable development of library facilities and increased use in large cities is not of course wholly due to this fact. Yet it has had an important influence in confirming public confidence, promoting careful selection of books and securing the use of the best methods by the growing institutions which lead this movement. The indorsement of the state and the liberality of the city have worked together to create conditions which have made the striking result possible. While there were many excellent libraries circulating thousands of books years before the state began to concern itself with details of their work, it is now true that the plans of the University have so fitted the conditions that the number of libraries remaining outside state supervision is extremely small.

Besides chartered, admitted and registered libraries there is still another class open for free circulation, which belong to teaching institutions and are also under state inspection. The total of free libraries inspected is now 397 as compared with 34 which have no relation to the University. For five years there has been going on a constant process of transfer from the latter to the former class. Large libraries have been growing still larger with public aid and their work has rapidly increased. The present comparative condition is shown in the following table and diagram.

23 libraries circulating over 200,000 volumes annually

LIBRARY PROGRESS

985 libraries report, or 47 more than last year. Of the 47, 45 were public libraries. Those supported wholly or in part by local taxation were 580, or 57 more than in 1898. Those receiving state aid in some form were 707, or 61 more than last year. The free lending libraries are 431, a gain of 23.

The addition of volumes in circulating libraries during the year was 224,283 or 12¾%. The total gain of circulation was 955,528 or 15%, an average advance of 2618 a day. The total free circulation in the state was 7,395,527 an average of 20,262 or for the year 1135 for each 1000 of the population and 373 for each 100 volumes in these libraries. In six years the free circulation or home use of books has been multiplied more than three times, and average use of books provided has increased 37%.

The following table summarizing returns from 1893 to 1899 shows continued increase from year to year in every item noted.

In the face of these encouraging returns as to reading, the still more encouraging fact remains true that public demand for books increases faster than the supply. Though the last year's circulation will average at least one book for each inhabitant of the state the majority of towns have as yet no free library. Large sections of great cities are still unsupplied. Within the year at least seven new branch libraries have been opened in the populous districts of Greater New York and every one has been welcomed and used by an eager constituency of old and young without diminishing the work of older libraries. There is little question that if 20 more such branches could be at once established, their patronage would be overflowing. The scattered communities must use the traveling library till they can by united effort maintain a permanent library in a central location within reasonable reach of the farms and smaller neighborhoods. The work for the state is only begun. It is making substantial progress, and the situation is full of promise, but the result at which we aim is still far in advance.

Growth and circulation of large libraries. Two charts recently prepared for the library exhibit of the Paris exposition of 1900, showing the comparative growth and circulation of the largest American libraries, are here reproduced on account of their general interest.

Two of the five largest libraries in the United States are in this state and of 23 libraries which circulated in one year over 200,000 volumes each, five are in the state and four in the city of New York. If the circulation of these four libraries should be added together the aggregate would far exceed the circulation of any one library here represented. The circulation of free libraries in New York city for 1899 reached 3,791,567 volumes. (See page 502.)

Oklahoma. School boards to appropriate for books for a public library, in districts with one teacher, $5 to $10; 2 teachers, $10 to $25; 3 teachers, $25 to $50; in cities of 2500, $50 to $100; county examiners at two year periods to furnish superintendent with lists of books and prices; local boards to buy from list in order designated.

California. Misdemeanor to detain library books 30 days after notice.

It is evident at a glance that library interests have received more legislative attention this year than ever before: 7 states have established library commissions, bringing the number up to 15, besides New York; 8 states have this year enacted laws for traveling libraries now legalized in 15 states, and 3 states have provided for securing library privileges in towns and counties by contract with libraries located outside the district supplied. In two instances tax rate limit for libraries has been increased, in others state appropriations are enlarged and everywhere the value of the public library as an educational force is being more adequately recognized in provisions of law for its permanent support.

Library commissions. The following table shows number of members, organization and resources of library commissions in 15 states where they now exist, arranged by date of establishment. Those states providing a traveling library system are also indicated.

LIBRARY MEETINGS

New York library association. A meeting was held at Poughkeepsie, Feb. 15–16, 1899.

The afternoon session was at the Adriance library, at which the subject of closer relations between the home, the school and the library was discussed from the standpoint of each. The committee on legislation reported and was continued. A committee for the revision of the constitution was appointed. A public meeting in the evening was addressed by Pres. J. M. Taylor of Vassar college and Rev. W. B. Hill of Poughkeepsie. At the session the following morning at Vassar college there was a profitable discussion of the books of 1898. Reports of the meeting are in the Library journal and in Public libraries for March 1899.

New York library club. The club held six meetings.

Oct. 13 1898 at Y. M. C. A. library, New York. Topics: Meeting of L. A. U. K., Modern Spanish novelists, Reports of progress from individual libraries; Federation of library interests.

Nov. 10, 1898 at Lenox library, New York. Papers read illustrated special characteristics of Lenox library.

Jan. 12, 1899 at the Boys high school, West 13th st., New York. Relations between free libraries and public schools.

Feb. 16, 1899 at Y. W. C. A. library, New York. Reports of library progress from the various libraries represented in the club; Reserving books for readers.

Mar. 17–18, 1899 the club united with Pennsylvania and New Jersey library associations in a tri-state meeting at Atlantic City (N. J.) Topics: A lending library for libraries; Children's rooms in free libraries;

1 Law providing for circulating libraries of the state of Montana was approved Mar. 19, 1895, but the money appropriated by the bill was not included with state appropriations and has not been available.

Appointment of a librarian of congress; Sunday school libraries; Departments for blind; Medical libraries; Progress of public library in Germany; Old novels as compared with new.

May 25 1899 at University settlement building, New York. Topics: Responsibility of librarians and literary editors; Methods of making a library known to the public; Picture bulletins.

The following officers were elected:

Dr J. S. Billings, president
F. B. Bigelow, 1st vice-president
J. C. Thomas, 2d vice-president
Pauline Leipziger, secretary
Harriet Husted, treasurer

Reports of all meetings were given in the Library journal.

American library association. The association met for its annual conference May 9–13, 1899 at Atlanta (Ga.). The library situation in the Gulf states was brought prominently forward and problems of library extension were discussed including traveling libraries, the work of women's clubs, state library commissions and state aid. The large libraries section discussed the librarian and his assistants, department organization and library stations. The college and reference section discussed classification and cooperation in lending. The elementary section considered book selection, classification, cataloguing and other essential parts of library organization and economy. Reports were received from the various committees and action taken for representation of library interests at the World's exposition at Paris in 1900. A discussion of open shelves in the light of actual experience brought out a general expression in favor of opening a considerable part of every library to free public access. The last day's session was held at Lithia Springs.

Of 215 members at the meeting. 100 were from the North Atlantic states, 42 from the South Atlantic states, 11 from the Gulf States, 55 from the Lake states, 4 from the Mountain states, 2 from the Pacific states and 1 from Canada. New York sent 44.

The following officers were elected

Reuben G. Thwaites, Madison Wis. president
Edwin H. Anderson, Pittsburg Pa.
Mary W. Plummer, Brooklyn N. Y. } vice-presidents
Ernest C. Richardson, Princeton N. J.
Henry J. Carr, Scranton Pa. secretary
Gardner M. Jones, Salem Mass. treasurer
Helen E. Haines, New York recorder

The papers and proceedings of the annual meeting are published as a number of the Library journal for July 1899 and an extended account appeared in Public libraries for October 1899.

National educational association. At the annual meeting at Los Angeles (Cal.), July 11–14, 1899 a valuable report covering 80 printed pages was received from the committee on relations of public libraries to public schools. This included full reading lists for the several grades, papers on Normal schools and libraries, Establishment of libraries in villages and rural districts, Hints for cataloguing and administration; The librarian's spirit and methods in working with schools, and other material bearing on the subject. This report is to be widely distributed among superintendents and teachers.

Library department. Two sessions of the library department of the N. E. A. were held July 13–14. Papers were presented on the Function of school superintendents in regard to libraries, School reading, How to acquire a taste for good reading and Use of the library, each paper being followed by discussion.

Officers elected were:

Sherman Williams, Glens Falls N. Y. president
Mrs Harriet Child Wadleigh, Los Angeles Cal. vice-president
Elizabeth Skinner, Denver Col. secretary

TRAVELING LIBRARIES

Traveling reference libraries. The assumption is general that a traveling library is for circulation only. But in many cases as much or more good can be accomplished by a library of which the books do not leave a certain room. The consideration that should determine the use of the books and that should override all presumptions or theories, is how the citizens of New York can be induced to read the largest number of the best books at the least cost. Any organization or community that can show an unusually favorable opportunity for such work may fairly ask for a traveling library and ought to be supplied. When we grant the principle, which almost no one seriously questions, that the library ranks with the public school as an educational agency to be fostered by the state, we are forced to the conclusion that the state can no more afford to neglect any specially favorable opportunities for libraries than it can afford to have a thickly populated rural district without free public schools. If a local art gallery or museum has suitable rooms open to the public for exhibiting its treasures, with conveniences for reading, making extracts, verifying references, etc, it would be eminently proper to send to that museum, if there were no other way of providing a suitable reference library on art, science or other subject of the collection, such a traveling library as would be needed by students or visitors, the amount of use to determine the utility of the method.

Library for the blind. The past year's experience leads us to believe that serious mistakes would have been made if we had not devoted ample time to a careful study of the peculiar needs of blind readers. The natural instinct of sympathy for them can be used as a personal factor for success, but unless balanced by sober judgment will lead to adoption of plans by no means for their best interests.

We are glad to have our own judgment confirmed in a paper delivered before the American library association in 1898 (Library journal 23: C93-95) by Mr Henry M. Utley, librarian of Detroit public library and ex-president of the American library association, that circulation of books for the blind is most easily and appropriately done from a state center. A state center is more desirable for the following reasons: the books are expensive; most readers are unable or unwilling to visit a library and there are few blind people in any one community except in large cities. We hope to secure the advantages and avoid the disadvantages of distribution from a state center. The vital problem of library work for the state is to secure the added intelligence, the technical skill and the economic gain of a large center without losing the sympathetic effort of the librarian. This must always be a large factor in bringing together book and reader, which is after all the essence of library work. To secure the nice balance of intelligence and sympathy is the chief study in developing the state library for the blind.

Our readers seem to enjoy very much the correspondence which we carry on with them in their own language by the use of the kleidograph, an ingenious special typewriter. We send out letters which they can read with their fingers and in reply they use this machine or writing tablets.

Our plan also involves securing the cooperation of libraries throughout the state or of individuals, one or more in each town, who will act as references for blind readers and visit them in their homes, explaining the plans of the library and the ease with which they may share its unusual opportunities. Since about 80% of the blind lose their sight in adult life, the first step consists in circulating alphabets and primers and persuading those who have not learned to read type for the blind that it is worth while for them to put forth a little persistent effort. These local cooperators may also be of great service in securing gifts of money to be spent for new books. The first report of actual progress will be issued next year.

Reading of farmers. Protracted study convinces me that there is no opportunity for educational work in America so promising as that of putting the best available reading into farmhouses. The long winter evenings when there is nothing to do on the farm and no city attractions and distractions to draw people away from home afford unusual opportunity for exciting interest in good books. No class has so much leisure for reading as farmers outside their busy season. Some do not read at all. Others do worse and read nothing but "yellow" journals. Many limit their reading to a religious paper of their denomination and to a local journal, both "weakly." Occasionally a subscription book falls into their hands which has been "recommended" by their clergyman or in some way has been exchanged for their hard earned money under an impression that it is a duty to have that particular book. There are exceptions that prove the rule, but our surprise and delight to find in a back country farmhouse the best books or magazines illustrates what is expected by those familiar with the facts.

Some papers classed as "religious weekly" are among the best literature circulated, but there is an immense circulation of weekly papers, narrow in religious outlook and weak or utterly lacking in literary merit, which find subscribers simply because they are run as the organ of some denomination. Even worse is the partizan sheet published primarily to advance some political interest. Little can be hoped from people whose chief literary diet is made up of matter printed for partizan or sectarian ends. The local clergyman is often the very best adviser as to books, but often men are induced to sign strong recommendations of an inferior book because the motives of author or publisher were so praiseworthy as to blind them to the weakness of the production or because they are too softhearted to refuse a testimonial persistently asked.

Our experience with traveling libraries has shown the wonderful possibilities that had lain dormant till within a decade when the state library started this missionary campaign. Demand has grown till now we have nearly one thousand of these libraries traveling about on their beneficent work all over the Empire state. But these collections have gone to libraries, schools and communities and have not reached the individual farmhouse where there are often five to 10 or more persons, all of whom should be helped to the best reading suited to their individual needs. I am convinced that the traveling library idea can be extended to scattered farms. We have lent books from the state library, but express or postage both ways makes a prohibitive cost if the books must go one at a time. I propose now that we send a package of 10 or more books to an individual home on the traveling library principle, leaving it long enough to give all the family opportunity to read as many of the books as interest them. The purpose is mainly to develop a taste for reading that will make good soil in which to plant reading circles, book clubs and the other agencies sure to follow a genuine interest in better reading. In this work we must remember that it is not a question of giving a farmer the best magazine or paper on farming or the best book or two on horses, cows, poultry, swine and other special topics, but of interesting him as a citizen in the infinite number of subjects that attract and fascinate those who live in cities, and helping him to broaden his own life by keeping in touch with the life of the rest of the world. After the farmer has acquired the reading habit and has learned that he can earn more money and enjoy his work better by standing on the shoulders of his predecessors and learning from the best books and periodicals the result of their experiments and experience, we must of course use our influence to help him to the very best reading outside his own special subjects. But the great thing is to develop so strong a taste for reading that it will insist on gratification. The complete solution is not obvious, but the way will open as our work goes forward. We can begin by sending the house library where there is strongest demand. Rural free delivery is opening certain possibilities. Probably the work, to be done most economically and efficiently, will require the traveling library in a new form.

A large wagon holding 100 or more of these house libraries could be so arranged that a skilful man could drive from house to house, exchange books, spend an hour perhaps with the people in getting a better idea of their interests and of what books would best meet their present wants. I am confident that under careful management as large educational returns could be secured from these book wagons as from any work now being done at public expense. In some localities the traveling missionary of the book might be able to gather people together in a schoolhouse or church for an informal talk, after which he would help each individual to choose for carrying home works that would really interest him.

Statistics

An examination of the statistics following will show that the demand for loans of books and pictures increases as the plan becomes better known.

Volumes. The total number of volumes accessioned in the public libraries division, Oct. 1, 1899, was 50,988. Of these 377 have been sold, 14 damaged, 40 worn out and 310 of which 125 belonged to the capitol library are at this time unaccounted for. Some will doubtless prove to be lost, others will from time to time be returned or paid for by the responsible borrower.

The volumes now in use are distributed as follows:

Libraries for traveling. It has been asserted that traveling libraries were really initiated by Napoleon and Sir Julius Caesar; but they had simply compact little collections to carry about with them for their personal reading, just as a thousand other persons have carried a few books in their trunks, which in that sense were traveling libraries. They were little libraries and traveled about. If put in a special case for use in a carriage, it even more might deserve the name of traveling library, but it has nothing in common with what is now understood by the term "traveling libraries". Our books are of ordinary size as they are not specially designed for carriages, boats or cars, though the best American trains and steamers are now considered incomplete without a library. Train and boat libraries like books on ocean steamers and men-of-war may fairly be called traveling libraries, but a traveling library in the usual sense of the term is one that travels only when not in use. It is for the use of the people and not for the owner's reading. The essential principle is economy and the libraries are traveling merely as a necessary method to secure that economy. After use for a given period by one community, they travel back to the center, are checked over, put in good repair and sent out for service in other fields, but they are not used while they are traveling, whereas the other type of libraries mentioned, from Sir Julius Caesar's down to the Lake Shore limited are never used except when traveling. Peripatetic libraries might have been a better name, leaving the word traveling for the books used by travelers either in public or private conveyances, but the name and the thing are now so well understood and approved that change seems undesirable and probably impracticable. For the origin of the modern traveling library system we must go to those cases where books are used first by one community and then by another till they are worn out in actual service, thus accomplishing the greatest possible good for a given expenditure.

TRAVELING PICTURES

The traveling pictures now include 666 wall pictures, 8066 photographs mounted on 11x14 in. cards, 13 lanterns with screens and attachments for use of oil, gas and electric light and 10,439 lantern slides. During the year, 528 wall pictures were lent to 64 schools and libraries; 3876 small photographs to 40 schools and clubs; 18 lanterns to 18 schools and clubs and 8860 lantern slides to 78 schools and clubs. The following tables show in detail the use of the pictures.

Another year's experience and observation confirm the theory held from the first that the public library is in itself not only the most important of the five great factors of home education, but is the only one which could be accepted as the natural center for general home education work. There has been marked growth the past year, as in every preceding year since our broad conception of the movement was formally announced, in the number of libraries which take on as a part of their regular functions some one or more phases of home education work. In scores of places the earlier traveling library idea has been adopted. This leads naturally to closer cooperation with study clubs, lyceums and other organizations for mutual help which begin by borrowing books and grow to getting complete traveling collections of books and pictures and suggestions for programs and even for administration. The library has been from the first the natural home of university extension workers. In many cases the librarian has been a leader in organizing a course and as a rule has been most active in every form of practical cooperation. The modern library is considered quite incomplete unless it has a fair sized room for lectures and also rooms available for meetings of study clubs and other organizations for intellectual advancement and therefore part of the home education system. There has been also fuller recognition of the use of the printing press by libraries, and the next decade promises to develop it much more widely as people learn in how many directions assistance can be given best and most cheaply through printed matter. The movement is quite as clearly marked among universities where the establishment of the university press and the publication of periodicals, transactions of societies, reports of conventions, results of original research and much other valuable matter is a most significant recent feature.

The recognition by the American library association of the alliance between libraries and home education in its 1898 meeting at Chautauqua has helped the movement materially, for its entire program was an object lesson to the world that with the 20th century the modern library was assuming its full responsibility as the educational center for young and old who were not in school or college. This tendency is in the line of least resistance for the development of our peculiar work, for the public library is already one of the most popular of social institutions. It has buildings, endowments and liberal support from taxation. It is receiving from individual sources unparalleled gifts. Everything indicates strongly that as the state library is the center of home education supervised by the regents, carried on in the same rooms under the same director and with close interlocking of staff and administrative machinery, so local libraries are recognizing home education features as essentials to their complete work. This is ground for great congratulation, for it insures rapid and substantial growth of home education, which would be greatly retarded if compelled to secure new buildings, trustees, funds and administrative machinery in order to get a prompt foothold in any community. The future would be less certain were it not for the fortunate fact that concentration of activity about the library is not only the most logical, but the most economical plan.

When a decade ago the introduction of university extension was eloquently advocated in this country, I pointed out repeatedly in conventions and in publications that its greatest hope lay in expanding the field of the public library, which in its nature must be its chief cornerstone. This view has grown year by year, not only as a theory among students of the question, but, more important, by practical confirmation in the tendency of various movements to center round the public library. In some cases there has been direct affiliation or combination of the two agencies; in others, the university extension center has suspended its operations or died a lingering death, while the library has taken up certain features of its work which are yearly growing stronger.

For this generation at least the work of the broadly administered library will be best understood if spoken of as "Library and home education," because most persons conceive of the library as dealing solely with books. Little by little the combined name will be dropped as the idea becomes established that the "library" without any enlargement of its name is expected by the community to be doing the larger work.

Respectfully submitted

FREE LENDING LIBRARIES

Geographic distribution. The following table shows the library resources of each of the 61 counties with circulation of free libraries, and this is farther compared with population and volumes available. Counties are arranged in nine local groups and comparative rank of each county and section in these respects is given.

a Some libraries free for reference are also free to a limited class for lending and included under both heads.

b Including circulation of subscription libraries and those free to a limited class.

Last year there were six counties where the circulation per 100 volumes was under 100 and 23 under 200. This year there are only four under 100 and 20 under 200, so that the other 41 counties average to circulate each book at least twice. These figures are significant but not at all conclusive, for circulation greatly depends on the character of books offered. A great reference collection or an accumulation of books no longer in demand attached to a free lending library, as in many of the older libraries, seriously pulls down the average of its county, while a comparatively small circulating library that provides the most popular novels freely would equally raise the average of its locality. With our system of supervision and the high and steadily improving average of books offered in the public libraries, the figures are gratifying and significant of real and satisfactory progress.

A curious error has been discovered in our county statistics. An alphabetic table with population had the six entries below as in the first column marked correct:

	Correct	Incorrect
St Lawrence	86 254	26 542
Saratoga	57 301	86 254
Schenectady	34 194	57 301
Schoharie	28 815	34 194
Schuyler	16 861	28 815
Seneca	26 542	16 861

Somewhere the line with 26,542 opposite Seneca dropped out and was replaced at the top instead of the bottom of the column, making the figures stand as in the second column; i. e. opposite each county was the population of the one just before it except that St Lawrence had Seneca's 26,542. As a result figures dependent on population have given St Lawrence and Seneca a pro rata credit much above their deserts, and have pulled down Saratoga, Schenectady, Schoharie and Schuyler. These are corrected in the current report.

The list of 10 counties with largest free circulation in proportion to population again shows Erie first, though it was 54th only two years ago, with an average circulation of $2\frac{1}{3}$ books for each inhabitant, a gain of 15% over last year. Fulton county has reached 2064. 19 counties, instead of 17 as last year, are beyond the 1000 mark. Nearly every county on the list shows a gain. New York has advanced from 1414 to 1724 for each 1000 population. Rockland, Ontario, Schenectady, Madison and Allegany appear in this list for the first time. Greene and Genesee have fallen out.

The list of 10 counties with largest circulation in proportion to volumes places New York first, which a year ago was fourth and Erie second as last year. Except in one instance the rate does not vary greatly from that of last year, but has fallen off a little. Larger additions of books than the proportionate increase of circulation probably account for this. Niagara stands 7 in place of Albany which drops to 16, though it rises from 47 to 42 in volumes to 1000 of population, and in total volumes in other than free libraries it is 2 or next to New York. This is due almost wholly to the remarkable recent growth of the state library.

A list of 61 libraries which have circulated in one year 500 or more volumes for each 100 owned is given. 27 are in New York city. 10 libraries exceeded an average circulation of 10 books to one.

For six years there has been an almost uniform increase in the number of libraries showing this large percentage of circulation.

In 1893	there were	6	libraries in this list.
" 1894	"	15	"
" 1895	"	19	"
" 1896	"	39	"
" 1897	"	50	"
" 1898	"	47	"
" 1899	"	61	"

Of the first 17 libraries, all but Amsterdam and Ellenville are in New York city, and of the entire 61, 28 are in Greater New York, thus showing the naturally great influence of crowded population on circulation. This is to be expected except by those who think the distractions of the city are so great as to counteract the reading habit. We should like assistance in our efforts to study the effect on circulation of great collections in great centers of population as compared with smaller libraries in scattered rural populations. There is probably some approximate law which would be practically most useful in interpreting our statistics.

New York city. The following table shows volumes and circulation in 1899, arranged in each borough in order of circulation. Considerable increase over reports of 1898 is seen in each district but one. In the borough of Manhattan the liberal appropriations of the preceding year were continued and the same rate of subsidy was extended to libraries in other boroughs. Circulation in the boroughs of Manhattan and Bronx reached the great total of 3,106,856 volumes, a gain of 549,676 this year.

In Brooklyn there was a gain of 20,786 volumes in the libraries and a loss of 900 in circulation. A considerable falling off in circulation of Pratt institute free library, due to closing the Long Island branch and to some temporary causes was largely balanced by the gain of the Brooklyn public library.

Queens borough gained a new library at Richmond Hill and a branch at Astoria. The seven libraries in the borough gained 3767 volumes and reported a circulation larger by 17,349 volumes than in 1898.

In Greater New York there was an increase of 8 libraries, including branches, 75,425 volumes and 580,596 circulation, making a total of 53 libraries, 697,356 volumes and 3,791,567 circulation. The free circulation was greater than that of all the state besides. A comparative summary of the work of Manhattan libraries is added.

Ownership and control

Pri. Private: belonging to an individual, family or firm and open to public if at all, only by courtesy.

Mem. Membership: controlled by an association requiring an election for admission or payment of a fee for right to vote for trustees; e. g. society, association, club, atheneum and other proprietary libraries. A membership library may be open to the public and supported in part by taxation, but is not controlled by the voters or their representatives.

Bus. Business: open to any one who pays the fee, i. e. libraries run as a business, like the circulating maintained in many book stores, and many mercantile libraries, though some of the latter are proprietary libraries.

End. Endowed: owned and controlled by trustees of an endowment, usually a self-perpetuating body. An endowed library may be freely open to the public but is not owned or controlled by it. This does not include libraries belonging to endowed institutions, colleges, schools or churches.

Pub. Public: owned and controlled by the public through trustees elected by the voters or appointed by their representatives, but does not include government, school or institutional libraries.

Pub. D. Public district: name given to a school district library when placed in control of independent trustees under laws of 1892 ch. 573 § 7.

Pub. sch. Public school: that form of public library organized under laws in force from 1838-92, if it still remains in control of school authorities.

Gov. Government: owned by U. S., state or local government; e. g. state, department, court, garrison and similar libraries, but does not include those classed as public, school or institutional.

Inst. Institutional: belonging to institutions other than colleges, schools and churches; e. g. hospitals, asylums, prisons, Y. M. C. A., etc.

Coll. and sch. College and school: maintained for use of students and teachers and owned and controlled by institutions.

Par. Parish: owned and controlled by a church.
